

Automobile insurance/indemnification/policy exclusions/wrongful death
Snow v. West American Insurance Company (No. 2003-CA-001062-MR, Court of Appeals 2003)

A passenger was tragically killed in a collision with another automobile. At the time of the accident the vehicle was allegedly uninsured and excluded by the family's other auto insurance policies. MGM was retained by the family to challenge the insurance company's application of exclusions to coverage and refusal to defend and indemnify the father who was driving the car at the time his daughter was killed. The appeal dealt with interpretations of exclusions in the insurance policy.
